

Exclusive Interview With Culhane and McGivern

Condemned Pair Hear Death Date

CHARLES CULHANE

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON

Formal sentencing of two Bronx men convicted of killing a deputy sheriff on the Thruway during an escape attempt in 1968, was scheduled for later today by County Judge Raymond J. Mino.

Charles Culhane, 25, and Gerald McGivern, 26, who are facing the electric chair for the murder of Deputy William Fitzgerald, were slated to hear the sentence imposed separately.

The appearance of the two men was to be their last in the lower court. The conviction for murder returned by a jury of 11 men and one woman on Jan. 26, and the decision of the same jury that the death penalty instead of life in prison should be imposed, are to be automatically appealed to the State Court of Appeals.

Judge Mino was expected to set the tentative date for the electrocution of the pair at the Green Haven State prison, where Culhane and McGivern have been confined in "death row" since the death penalty verdict was reported last Friday.

The two convicted men were returned to the county jail here shortly before 8:45 p.m. Thursday under a heavy guard of police officers and deputy sheriffs.

At today's appearance, both men were to be given the opportunity to make motions in an effort to have the conviction and death sentence set aside.

The first trial of the pair ended in a hung jury last June after a jury of nine men and three women reported they were unable to agree on a verdict. The second trial in January ended with the "guilty as charged" verdict, which was followed on Feb. 12 with the death penalty decision.

"We are not guilty — we never killed anyone in our lives."

Those were the words of McGivern and Culhane when interviewed by The Freeman in the County Jail today.

Church Council group opposes death penalty. . . Story Page 3.

The two men recalled incidents that arose during the trial in January of the murder charge that stemmed from the killing of a Westchester County deputy sheriff on the Thruway near Plattekill on the afternoon of Sept. 13, 1968.

McGivern and Culhane spoke freely as they answered questions put to them by the reporter regarding the decision of the jury that unanimously agreed last Friday on the death penalty for the two men, rather than life in prison.

"Life in prison," McGivern remarked, "is a slow death to me." Culhane agreed.

"We are not choir boys," McGivern commented as he made reference to the records of robbery convictions for which the two were serving sentences at the time of the killing of the deputy sheriff.

"But," McGivern continued, "when it comes time to pay the piper we're ready, but not for something we didn't do."

Culhane said he didn't think the conviction was consistent with the evidence and testimony offered at the first phase of the trial.

"I know in my heart that justice was not done," Culhane said.

Commenting on the verdict of "guilty," reported by the jurors on Jan. 26, Culhane said, "They actually sentenced us to death when they brought in the guilty verdict."

Under guard of Sergeant Marshall Canosa, in whose custody the men have been throughout the trials, and other deputies, Culhane and McGivern who had just taken showers, sat on a small table. They showed no sign of nervousness when the formal sentencing was discussed.

"If the Court of Appeals affirms the conviction and death sentence, are you afraid to die?" the reporter asked the convicted pair.

"I am not afraid to die in a conventional sense," Culhane replied. "The fear of leaving life doesn't bother me because I think there is a continuance of life."

"I'm not walking to the electric chair without being afraid," said McGivern.

Both men said the reason they didn't testify at trial was on advice of counsel "and because we thought acquittal was certain based on testimony of Joseph Singer (a chief prosecution witness) who lied all the way through."

Bell Doubts Any New Funds For Ulster Schools in 1971

By WADE BURKHART

ROSENDALE

The news from Albany for Ulster County schools is almost all bad. The bearer of the ill tidings was Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, R-Woodstock, who addressed the Ulster County Association of School Boards Thursday night at Williams Lake.

How bad does Bell think things are? Bad enough for him to say, "I don't think there is going to be any new money for education this year."

In support of his thesis, he offered the following figures: Governor Rockefeller's budget proposes a $1.1 billion increase, $352 million of the increase earmarked for education. Bell thinks this increase to be largely illusory. Only $186 million is for K-12 education, and only $72 million is really new money, the rest being mandated by already existing programs.

And Bell hinted strongly that he did not think much of the $72 million's chances of surviving the widespread and intense demands for budget cuts by the state's taxpayers. "Sixty per cent of the state's budget goes for education and welfare," Bell said, "and that is where any cuts will probably be made."

He concluded that about all a local board could do is tighten its belt and wait for federal revenue sharing, a prospect which he felt was rather forlorn. He pointed out that Congress is dominated by Southern and Western who rose to power through the seniority system.

To decrease a school's staff by either an outright cut or freeze on new hiring would affect teachers and reducing the number of teachers would not be an appropriate economy move for a school board.

To eliminate whole programs would also be impractical. Bell pointed out that approximately 50 per cent of a school's programs are state mandated, and many of the rest of the programs were necessary for college preparation. What is left as eligible for elimination are such programs as honors programs and programs for the educationally disadvantaged. Bell said he would hate to try to start assigning priorities in these areas.

Bell expressed guarded optimism in one area. He said he is now considered to be one of a group of upstate legislators known as "The Appleknockers."

"The Appleknockers," through the cooperation of local school administrators, have gathered facts and figures which may aid them in the fight for a new formula for state aid to local school transportation.

"The Appleknockers" are seeking a more equitable formula, one feature of which would keep a school district from receiving less than it did in a previous year. Bell expressed some hope of success.

Bell said his mail was presently running about five to one in favor of the Speno-Lerner Bill to provide direct aid to non-public schools. In response to a question from the floor he admitted that this was probably the result of an organized campaign rather than a true indication of public support.

Bell said that no education program was before the legislature at present; substantive action is awaiting public reaction. He thanked local administrators for their aid in the past, and said he would contact them as soon as proposals appeared.

Bigger Tax Boost Seen If Mayors Get Their Way

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller's administration said today that the demands by the mayors of the state's six largest cities for $650 million more in state aid would require tax increases far greater than those already proposed.

The Big Six mayors charged that their cities were short-

Not true, retorted State Budget Director Richard L. Dunham in a statement approved by Rockefeller.

"To keep the record straight, it should be noted that the state budget for the fiscal year 1971-72 provides $541,411,000 of increases in state aid for the Big Six cities," he said. "The widely publicized claim that the budget provides no additional money for the Big Six therefore is unfounded."

Not satisfied with this, Dunham said, the mayors have demanded another $650 million in state aid for welfare, education and police services. "To add this $650 million to our budget," he declared, "would require tax increases beyond those already requested equivalent to two additional cents on the sales tax or a 30 per cent surcharge on the state income tax."

The governor has asked for a one-cent increase in the sales tax, now three cents on a dollar, and a 10 per cent surcharge on the income tax as part of a $1.1-billion package of tax increases to balance a budget of $8.45-billion. Dunham's statement was translated to mean that a six-cent sales tax and a 40 per cent surcharge on the income tax would be needed to fulfill the mayors' demands.

The statement was issued as the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee concluded two days of public hearings in Albany, Buffalo and New York City on Rockefeller's budget plan.

The mayors, in a joint appearance Wednesday in Albany, complained that the budget was inadequate and could force tax increases on the local level to provide the needed revenue.

"Instead of increasing local assistance programs, the budget represents a standstill in most areas," said the statement issued by John V. Lindsay of New York City, Erastus Corning 2nd of Albany, Frank Sedita of Buffalo, Alfred Del Bello of Yonkers, Stephen May of Rochester and Lee Alexander of Syracuse.

Many others asked more state aid in the Wednesday hearings in the three cities. On Thursday, the emphasis was on economy and taxes.

Cop Killer Suspects Seized in Dallas

DALLAS (UPI)—Sixty federal, county and city policemen descended on an apartment complex on the east side of the city early today and arrested two men wanted for the execution style murders of three deputy sheriffs.

Both men, hiding in the bathroom of an apartment, gave up without firing a shot. Police said the two gunmen—Rene Adolfo Guzman, 33, and Leonardo Ramos Lopez, 25—killed three helpless, bound and pleading deputy sheriffs last Monday night on a levee of the Trinity River near downtown Dallas. The suspects were held without bond.

Police also arrested two women in the apartment, Angeline Hernandez, 38, and Mary Alcedo. They had been disarmed at Rosales, 25, and charged them with being accessories to murder and harboring fugitives. They were held on $100,000 and $50,000 bond respectively.

"We are happy this is all Guzman's brother, Moises over," said Dallas County Sheriff Clarence Jones, who had been charged. He was arrested only a few hours sleep since the Monday night within hours of the killings and is being held in the Dallas County jail without bond.

Harp Speaks to Legislative Committee

State Budget, Paltz College Attacked

ALBANY Peter W. Harp, a New Paltz attorney and community leader, leveled a scathing attack against the proposed New York state budget in general and the State University College at New Paltz in particular before a joint legislative committee hearing Wednesday.

Harp was joined by representatives from two taxpayers groups, WHITA (We've Had It Taxpayers Association) and the Walkill Taxpayers Association. Speaking to the joint legislative committee, Harp charged, "You spend too much money and energy with little effort to obtain the best possible result for the good of the common people. You create hundreds of expensive 'no-show' jobs for political hacks and lame ducks . . . who believe they have a divine birthright to feed at the public trough."

Harp then went on to level specific charges against the administration of the state college at New Paltz, stating that the school was an asset a dozen years ago but is now "a horrible disgrace and liability."

"The use and abuse of drugs is rampant," Harp charged. "We have the reputation of being the worst drug center in the state."

Harp said, "The head of the medical department omitted, neglected or refused to make the necessary reports upon venereal diseases at the college as mandated by the health department of the state."

"The college administration encourages larceny and pilfering," Harp asserted. "They retain upon the faculty a man convicted by a jury in Ulster County Court of stealing several shirts from a local merchant."

"Pilfering is rampant in the college," Harp charged. "I am reliably informed that 12 large colored TV (new units) sets were taken from the college and sold through a fence in Newark. What we need is honesty in our government, schools and welfare. The university authorities were duly notified but nothing was done to punish those who profited thereby."

Then, directly attacking the college's president, Dr. John J. Neumaier, Harp charged, "The president of the State University at New Paltz proclaims the accomplishments while the institution reeks with drugs, encourages pilfering and is in turmoil within its faculty with the antics of the 'pinks' and the 'punks' upon the faculty."

"It would be better if he took care of the job for which he is paid. Soft honey words have no more true meaning than the song of the mocking bird," Harp said.

Returning to state fiscal affairs, Harp termed the federal sharing of revenues concept "a racy work."

great fraud and burden on New York State."

"Everything you spend must be provided by the people," Harp said, "and excessive spending reduces the true value of all money, savings and insurance. As long as you spend more than is taken in you are heading us down the road to disaster, like the fate of the Roman Empire."

Nixon Giving Building Union a Choice

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — President Nixon reportedly is giving AFL-CIO construction unions the alternative of joining in a national wage-price stabilization board or facing the risk of hard-and-fast federal controls in which labor leaders would have no say at all.

Informed sources said today the idea of a government-labor-industry stabilization board with power to review any construction industry dispute before there could be a strike or price hike is the top card in a series of proposed White House alternatives that Secretary of Labor J.D. Hodgson is empowered to offer AFL-CIO leaders here.

Sources indicated, however, the threat of a wage price freeze is still Nixon's principal bargaining weapon in seeking to force an easing of soaring construction costs, even though government sources privately conceded it might be difficult to enforce in the federal courts.

This agreed with the thinking of labor lawyers, who question whether standby wage-price controls given Nixon by Congress would be imposed on a single industry.

Sources in the 13.6 million member AFL-CIO, holding its annual winter leadership meetings, cautioned there was no as-urance the 17 construction unions would buy the White House proposal during the next three days of scheduled meetings with Hodgson.

One construction union president earlier called Nixon's wage-price freeze threat a political bluff.

The proposed national stabilization board reportedly would have the power to review in advance any wage strike or industry price hike for a specified period of time, still to be worked out, after which the board would rule whether it was acceptable.

The board would have no further enforcement power, but the government would still have maneuvering pressure in its ability to hold back federal construction funds or suspend the Davis-Bacon Act which sets wages for federal construction projects according to "prevailing" wage rates in the area of the project.

The latter action would have the effect of steering such projects to nonunion laborers, thus putting pressure on the unions.

The stabilization board procedure also would provide the union members on such a board with an escape valve with their union members, since they could issue a minority report if the board ruled against a wage hike.

Union officials, who are elected by their union members, have argued against Nixon's plea for a voluntary wage curb on grounds they could not agree without risking the displeasure of union members.

"We will meet with the executive council of the building and construction trades department to see if there is some way these leaders can participate in a program looking to stabilization of wages, prices and work in a great and growing industry—construction," Hodgson said in a statement on his arrival Thursday.

Tate Trial — Grisly Details

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Krenwinkel, serene and softspoken, confessed in grisly detail that she killed two persons in the Sharon Tate murders and carved "War" on the chest of one of them.

The dark-haired, plain-looking defendant was unemotional as she testified Thursday that she chased coffee heiress Abigail Folger across the lawn of actress Tate's mansion and then "I stabbed her and I kept stabbing her."

The next night, she said, she stabbed the wife of wealthy market owner Leno LaBianca, later carving "War" in La Bianca's chest and leaving a fork stuck in his stomach.

She said bearded Charles Manson, hippie-style clan leader, was not involved in any of the seven killings in August 1969.

The 23-year-old, her wavy brown hair hanging nearly to her waist, was the second woman defendant to confess on the stand during the penalty phase of the murder trial. Susan Atkins has admitted killing Miss Tate and, in an unrelated incident, a Malibu physician.

Both said Manson was not involved. The two women, Manson and Leslie Van Houten have been convicted of murder. The jury is hearing evidence to decide if they should be sentenced to death or life in prison.

Miss Krenwinkel, describing her life with Manson's roving "family," said she considered him "perfection" and the best lover she ever knew.

Then she told of the night when Miss Tate and four visitors were slain in a red mansion on a hilltop.

She said she, Miss Atkins, Charles "Tex" Watson and Linda Kasabian, who testified for the state, "dropped acid" together before going on a drive.

None told her where they were going, she said, and she had no intent to kill.

Her memory, she said, was blurred because the group was "stoned" on LSD, but she remembered violence and the chase of Miss Folger, 26.

"I had a knife in my hand and I ran out a back door . . . I chased her through the door onto the lawn and I stabbed her and I kept stabbing her and I looked up and there was blackness and that was all."

"What did you feel after you stabbed her," she was asked.

"Nothing . . . It was just there and like it was right."

"What did you feel as you left?"

"I guess complete paranoia."

Her memories, she said, are of "reaction . . . It's all a picture of motion and reaction. I can't remember details. There was some man I was tying up. I can remember looking up and Sadie was fighting with two women. I remember I just got

Ted: It's Poorhouse Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., describes President Nixon's new health plan as "poorhouse medicine" that would turn over the worsening problem of health care to the private health insurance industry.

Kennedy's criticisms were among the harshest offered Thursday after Nixon sent to Congress a 17-page message proposing national health insurance for nearly all Americans to counter what the President called a "deepening crisis" in the health field.

Nixon's plan drew support from some quarters. The American Medical Association

(AMA) said its reaction was "generally favorable." Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., whose Ways and Means Committee will screen the plan, said he was keeping an "open mind." Mills predicted Congress would approve some form of major health legislation either this year or next.

The administration comprehensive health care plan carries a $1.5 billion price tag, substantially smaller than that proposed by Kennedy and others in Congress. Kennedy and 24 other senators have introduced a bill which would authorize cradle-to-the-grave government health insurance.

About $1.2 billion of the $1.5 billion would be used to finance free care for welfare families earning less than $3,000 a year. Health insurance would be furnished by private employers. The federal government would not pay for the insurance in any way.

Dr. Edwin L. Crosby, executive president of the American Hospital Association (AHA), said his organization was "pleased" with the President's plan but added it would not provide "sufficient incentives to realize a meaningful restructuring of the health delivery system."

Port Ewen Sewer District Gets Green Light

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

PORT EWEN — The formation of a Port Ewen Sewer District was unanimously approved by the Esopus Town Board at Thursday night's special meeting.

The Sewer District embraces the same areas covered by Port Ewen Water District. The southern boundary is at Aero Lake Airport property; the Penn Central Railroad tracks to the west; the Hudson River to the east and Rondout Creek to the north including Connelly and Sleightburgh.

Authorizations were approved for the town engineers, Brinnier and Larios to proceed with the town attorney, Louis Klein in preparing applications for state and federal aid, the construction by March 31, 1972.

preparations of the maps of district boundaries and setting up cost schedules in preparation for an informational meeting planned for this summer.

The timetable calls for actual construction by March 31, 1972.

When the applications for aid are prepared the supervisor, George H. Freer was authorized to apply for the town.

Supervisor Freer also reported that the town engineers and attorney will be conferring with City of Kingston officials on the tie-in of the Port Ewen sewer lines into the city sewage treatment plant at Rondout.

Kingston's final plans for a second sewage facility are available.

Freer noted that Brinnier and Larios had previously made a thorough study of a proposed sewer district in 1967 and had since updated the plans in 1969. As the boundary lines have not changed the new plans should be expedited to project an informational meeting in the summer followed by public hearings.

Prior to the regular Town Board session, the Planning and Zoning Commission is expected to be scheduled in early met with the Town Board to April.

Church Council Unit Critical

KINGSTON

The Community Relations Committee of the Kingston Council of Churches today made public a statement concerning capital punishment.

The statement will be submitted to Council members for acceptance at the next meeting Thursday, Feb. 25.

The Rev. James Veatch, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church is chairman of the Community Relations Committee. Others serving on the committee are Humphrey Jones of St. James United Methodist Church and the Rev. David Lull, pastor of the Port Ewen United Methodist Church.

The statement is as follows: "We regret to hear that Gerald McGovern and Charles Culhane have been sentenced to receive the death penalty. We do not wish to imply by our statement that we intend to impugn the consciences of the members of the jury; nor do we presume to comment on their original decision to find McGovern and Culhane guilty. But we do deplore the existence of the New York State law permitting capital punishment. It is, therefore, with deep regret that we read in The Daily Freeman of Feb. 13, that public opinion supports the continued practice of capital punishment. This occasion makes us aware of our public responsibility, under the mandate of the Word of God, to address ourselves to this moral issue.

"We believe that death as a means of punishment for any crime, however repugnant or heinous, contradicts essential

Judeo-Christian teachings; that the death penalty contradicts the United States constitutional amendment forbidding "cruel and unusual punishment;" that the death penalty is unjust and ineffectual as a deterrent; that the present law permitting the death penalty in New York rests upon a false, unfair, and discriminatory distinction between the lives of police officers and other citizens; that death penalties overburden the courts with appeal trials; that in New York capital punishment has been abandoned in practice for some time, and that this involves a harmful inconsistency between law and practice.

"We, therefore, are opposed to the death penalty as punishment for any crime, and will actively seek the abolishment of capital punishment in New York State."

Egypt Puts It on Line On Mideast Situation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The article said, however, that this did not mean Egypt would start shooting on March 7 when the current cease-fire expires. Instead it will retain the initiative to pick the "time, place and method of fighting."

Sources close to the Israeli government reported Thursday that Egypt has indicated it will sign a peace treaty if Israel returns all of the Sinai Desert. Israel has demanded a binding peace agreement as a prelude to any withdrawal from territory it occupied in the 1967 Middle East war.

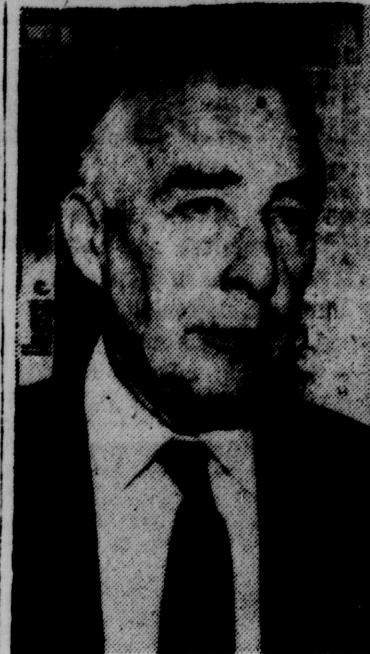

Observers in Jerusalem noted that even though the reported Cairo offer included the standard demand for complete Israeli withdrawal, by speaking of a peace treaty or agreement, it went further than Egypt's previous expressions of willingness to reach a "settlement."

The Israeli sources reported that Egypt also held out the prospect that it would allow Israeli ships to use the Suez Canal if there was peace.

The sources said Egypt also said it would not interfere with Israeli shipping in the Strait of Tiran, between the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aqaba. The gulf gives access to Israel's southern port, Eilat, and an Egyptian threat to blockade it was one of the causes of the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The sources said Israel would not agree to total withdrawal but that Premier Golda Meir's government would urge direct talks with Cairo in an attempt to haggle out some compromise Israeli pullback.

They said an Israeli answer to the Egyptian proposal might be drafted at the next Cabinet session on Sunday.

30 Graduated By Troopers, Dempsey on List

ALBANY — Thirty police officers, including 14 members of the State Police and 16 members of other law enforcement agencies, were graduated today from the State Police Traffic Science Training Program. Included in the group was Sgt. Richard J. Dempsey of the Kingston Zone Headquarters.

The class was the second to complete the intensive 10-week course which was developed last year with the aid of Federal funds to provide advanced training in traffic management problems. Enrollment in the course is restricted to officers with traffic supervisory responsibilities.

Superintendent William E. Kirwan, who awarded diplomas at the exercises at the State Police Academy, said he was "confident that the training received here will have many and continuing benefits as you share your knowledge with the personnel in your organizations."

Also addressing the group of graduates was Joseph Kusala, executive director of the State Traffic Safety Council.

The State Police plans to conduct the course four times a year for classes of 30, with approximately half of the students from outside police agencies. Trainees beyond commuting distance are housed in the academy dormitories.

The third session is scheduled to begin Monday, Feb. 22.

Cantine Firm Gets Cited On Pollution

Martin Cantine Co., of a federal grand jury and if found guilty faces a fine ranging from $100 to several thousand dollars. The firm has been granted an adjournment for a hearing to Feb. 22 when they may enter a plea to the charges. The charge involves the suspended clay solids that are introduced into Esopus Creek village system.

When the firm's settling basin overflows, Cantine is currently investigating the possibility of securing permission to inject this waste into the Saugerties Village sewer system, if it can be determined that the waste is not a detriment to the village system.

Saugerties was one of several firms cited by the federal government for introducing pollutants into the Hudson River.

Man Is Jailed, In Altercation With Trooper

NEW PALTZ — A 49-year-old Sidney man was in the Ulster County Jail today facing charges stemming from an altercation with a state trooper following his arrest on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Trooper J. E. Hornbeck was patrolling Albany Post Road in this town at about 9 p.m. Thursday, when he stopped Daniel Gauthier and cited him for drunken driving. The motorist refused to submit to a blood or breathalyzer test, troopers said.

While the trooper was driving Gauthier to the home of Town Justice Rexford Schneider for arraignment, the man allegedly attacked Hornbeck and tried to force the patrol car off the highway.

Hornbeck managed to subdue the motorist after a struggle. Authorities said the trooper and Gauthier were taken to the New Paltz Medical Center where Hornbeck was treated for a possible broken forefinger of the right hand, and Gauthier was treated for scalp lacerations and bruises.

Gauthier was later booked for drunken driving, second degree assault and resisting arrest. Judge Schneider fixed bail at $2,100 and remanded the defendant to jail pending a hearing on Feb. 26.

Landmarks Dig It Again

KINGSTON The Kingston Landmarks Commission reviewed last year's archeological dig in the uptown Kingston area and anticipated further reports on the findings at its regular meeting Thursday night.

Members plan to meet with Dr. Bert Salwen, New York University professor who conducted the exploration opposite the Senate House last summer to arrange for final reports on the findings and possibly to arrange for further archeological digs in the historic areas of Kingston.

The Landmarks Commission is currently working on a new list of properties to be considered for historic designation in the coming year. When the research is completed a public hearing will be held on the selected locations.

Harry Rigby Jr., city historian, presided at the meeting which was held at the city courtroom. Others attending included William Ryan, George Hutton, Dr. Charles Galyon and Kathryn Heavey, members of Kingston.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 19, 1971

Boost Now, Efficiency Later

Everyone, including editorial writers, yapped so long and so well about the perennial deficits of the U.S. Post Office Department that the government finally did something about it.

The politically independent, corporation-type U.S. Postal Service officially takes over delivery of the mail in a few months.

Already it has recommended to the Postal Rate Commission, another new body, that rates for first-class mail be raised from six to eight cents, air mail from 10 to 11 cents and post cards from five to seven cents. Postage for newspapers and magazines would also go up, and bulk mail (or "junk mail," if you will) would be socked for substantial amounts.

Only parcel post rates would not be changed—not right now—since these were raised last November.

Even if the commission were to deny requests, which it won't, the Postal Service has the authority to boost rates up to one-third over present levels.

What gives pause is the fact that the new rates will not do anything to improve efficiency. They are catch-up increases, designed to put the system on a self-supporting basis. Investment in new equipment and processing methods will come later.

It is a good question whether the public, especially that part of it to whom pennies are very important, will be better off now that it will have to pay for postal service directly out of its pocket rather than indirectly through subsidies from general tax revenues.

Businesses which use the mails heavily will, in most cases, pass on the added costs to their customers.

But we asked for reform, and we're going to get it.

Youth Not Taking Over

Claims that youth is taking over the country by sheer force of numbers don't bear up under the statistics.

True enough, the latest census found that the median age of Americans dropped from 29.6 in 1960 to 27.6 in 1970, largely as the result of the continuing effects of the post-World War II baby boom.

(The median is a statistical dividing line. Exactly half the population is older than 27.6 years; half the population is younger.)

There have been other dips throughout the country's history, but generally the trend has definitely been toward a higher and higher median age.

In 1820, for example, when the birth rate was far higher than life expectancy was far lower than it is today, the median age was 16.7 years.

In 1870 the median was up to 20.1, and in 1920 it was 25.3.

As the baby boom passes, the median again will start upward, reaching an estimated 30 years by the 1980s. A sharp decrease in the birth rate, coupled with breakthroughs in extending life span, could boost it even higher.

A week after the Maryland state school board banned schoolhouse spankings, the state legislators opened hearings on a bill to restore the paddle to public schools. The question, is corporal punishment a deterrent in this age of permissiveness, or a provocation?

A Venice Roman Catholic Church Court has completed a preliminary investigation into the cause of beautification of the late Pope John XXIII, a first step to sainthood. If it were up to a world court, Good Pope John would be sainted now. He captured the human heart as no Pontiff has in modern time, and very few before.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Hey, buddy, if you really want to get with the fad of wearing Army clothes—why not go all the way?"

The Albatross

David Lawrence Says
New Plan for Regulatory Agencies Before Congress

WASHINGTON — Congress has hardly gotten started yet, and when it does one of the most complex pieces of legislation of recent years will be up for consideration — a reorganization of several regulatory agencies of the government.

The President's advisory council on executive reorganization has recommended that the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Board, the mission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Communications Commission should be put into a new framework of agencies restructured along functional lines. The purpose is to streamline the procedures and cut red tape. A special administrative court of 15 judges would be set up to deal with the rulings of the regulatory agencies.

Changes occur affecting various areas of economic enterprise which are under regulation by independent commissions of the government, and a great deal of time is spent by business representatives in getting rulings from the government. Thus, in transportation there are questions relating to greater efficiency in the movement of goods and people. In trade, the President's advisors are pointing out that more attention could be given the quality of goods and services. In securities, factors are arising which are "altering the characteristics of securities trading."

The report of the President's Advisory Council says:

"In power, where industry structure is also undergoing change, supplies of electrical energy and natural gas have not consistently kept pace with increasing demands in certain areas, and new technologies have yet to take up the slack."

"In communications, burgeoning technology has created new avenues for service and new products which together complicate the task of regulation and blur distinctions between the various forms of communications."

It is contended that the regulatory agencies at present are not sufficiently accountable either to Congress or the President. The report adds that "overjudicialization encumbers the time and energies of commissioners and staff, causes undue case backlogs, imposes high cost upon litigants, prevents anticipatory action through rulemaking, deters informal settlements, and precludes coordination of agency policy and priorities with those of the executive branch."

The argument is made that many of the functional responsibilities are inappropriately distributed among the various commissions and that better coordination can be attained. It is recommended that, except for trade-practice proceedings, review cases should be transferred to a new administrative court of the United States which would be "expert as to both the substantive issues involved in transportation, securities, and power legislation and the procedural intricacies of the Administrative Procedure Act which governs agency and review process."

The President's advisors point out that removing judicial review from the U.S. Courts of Appeals would reduce the load of those courts and that the special 15-judge court would mean an expert group concentrating on the problems of governmental regulations, thus providing an expeditious disposal of cases.

A single administrator is suggested for each of the restructured agencies except the Federal Communications Commission. It would continue in the same form but with five, instead of seven commissioners, who would serve five-year terms. The President's council believes that this change would result in an "improved regulatory effectiveness without raising the prospect of partisan control over the broadcast media or of individual interference with the free exchange of ideas and information." In this case it rejected plans for a single administrator.

But what Congress will do with the proposed scheme is uncertain. The various interests that are subject to regulation will express themselves, and the Senate and House probably will take a long look at the legislation which the President sends up to implement the reorganization. But certainly the administration is making an effort to develop a much more effective system of regulation than that which prevails today, and it must be conceded that the present set-up is complicated and unsatisfactory to both the people and the government.

FIFTY YEARS WITH THE RIGHT WOMAN

Momma said she would never live to see her golden wedding anniversary. She was a little woman now, a lady with pale porcelain skin and a feather of gray in her bronze hair. She was blunt about everything; tact was for fakers. "I'm old and almost blind," she said, "and fifty years is a long time to be married to an old — old — goat, that's what he is."

To which my father said nothing. He nodded and put on his small penitential smile. "I can hear you grinning," she said, stomping her cane. Big John put on his innocent-hurt expression. "Jenny," he said solemnly, "I didn't say a word. Not one blessed word." "anyway," she said, "I want to go first. If you want first, I'd have nobody to do the dishes."

"And that's the truth," he said, shaking his head sadly. He looked at me. "Did you know that Joy makes dish washing almost a pleasure?" "I brought the pinocchio deck," I said. "Oh," he said with a voice full of pity. "I can beat you blindfolded. You never learned how to play trump."

Jenny Bishop lived to see the golden wedding anniversary. It was a brook-clear cold day with a rime of rusty snow on the curbs. The children arrived with their gifts; then the grandchildren and the great-grandchildren. The names of the great-grandchildren remained a mystery to Jenny and John. They knew which ones belonged to whom, but they were all called by the wrong names.

My mother could love them, and hold them on her short lap until they squirmed to be free. My father loved them but he looked at them as though someone had loosed a pride of baby lions in his apartment. All the boys were "son"; all the girls were "sis." The granddaughters spent the day in the kitchen, telling stories and giggling among the steaming pots.

Someone was on television discussing famous plays in baseball, and my father chewed an unlit cigar and watched the plays. To his way of thinking, from the days of Jake Ruppert and Ruth and Gehrig and Wally Pipp, there was no team but the New York Yankees. He would not admit that they ever lost a game. If he was questioned about it, he'd snarl: "Ah, they fired it away."

Jenny was dressed in a lavender silk slip with a lavender lace dress and someone had done her hair. She sat leaning on her cane and fluffing the coiffure with the loose hand. When she smiled, she showed a gold tooth. Only my father knew that that was false, too.

The dinner was great and two granddaughters explained the gifts to my mother and she cried a little. "To think that I have lived to see this day," she said. "John, it's a long way back to that funeral coach and the horse." He was still studying the television screen. "It sure is," he said, without knowing what she was talking about.

The little ones chased each other, laughing around the end tables, the lamp wires and put their pudgy fingers in doors that were closing. My parents were becoming nervous, but they laughed and said it was a great, great day. "Like the tie?" my father said, pointing inside his blue serge suit at a red one I nodded.

"If I had a swallow complexion like you," he said sweetly, "I'd always wear a garnet tie." "Thanks," I said. He went back to the television and an old Errol Flynn movie.

Mr. Flynn was on a sailing ship whipping a flashing sword and backing up a staircase to the poop deck toward a dark girl wearing a Maureen O'Hara blouse.

"I'm tired," my mother said. He had waited a half century for this day and it was over at 4 p.m. "I'm going to take a nap. Excuse me, everybody." Everybody kissed her. "I'll help you into bed," I said. She shook her head no. "Let my boy friend help me," she said.

He arose irritated. "I ought to be your boy friend," he said, a bit on the loud side. "We've been married fifty years, and we kept company five years before that, not counting the year we didn't speak to each other." My mother smiled broadly. She loved to touch a tender nerve. "Don't give me any of the blarney," she said. "Help me to bed, John."

He was big and old, a red-faced man under a sheaf of snow, and he took her by the hands and helped her up out of the deep chair. Slowly, he stepped forward. He stood behind her, holding her elbows and making mincing steps. They were in the bedroom a few minutes. I could hear the voices rise and fall like a hot August wind in the poplar tree.

I went to the doorway and stood and watched. My mother was standing before her dresser. My father crouched behind her. The dress must have had a score of tiny hooks and eyes. He was working from the neck, with big butterfingers, and he hadn't opened the first one yet.

His glasses were at the bottom of his nose. The task was impossible. He turned and saw me. A sly smile cracked his serious face. "Would you believe," he said, "that I was once pretty good at this?"

Jack Anderson Says
Trigger-Happy Guards Charged
With Shooting Forty Prisoners

WASHINGTON — Florida authorities allegedly have passed off as a "prison riot" what was, in fact, a prisoner-shoot by trigger-happy guards.

The details have been smuggled to us out of Florida's blood-spattered Raiford prison by 43 convicts, whose shocking testimony has been supported by four prison employees and one prison official.

The statements were sneaked out of the prison through an ex-inmate and a University of Florida coed. "I plead with you as a human being to help us! Jack Anderson, please do not turn away from us!" implored a typical letter.

As evidence, the convicts sent us lead pellets from the shot that was used on them. We have also been in touch secretly with the prison employees who confirm the prisoners' version of what happened.

This much is undisputed: On February 12, guards with shotguns wounded at least 40 prisoners who had been striking for reforms on Raiford's baseball field.

The prison director, Louie Wainwright, claims the convicts were charging a triple fence in an effort to flee. The prison authorities said the guards turned them back with birdshot. This is the story that was put out by the wire services.

The prisoner statements, scrawled in longhand, the grammar sometimes poor, differ in minor details. But all agree that the inmates never rushed the fences. It is alleged, instead, that the guards fired at men lying fearfully face down or sitting in passive protest on the field.

Human Targets

A statement signed by 36 inmates who claimed to be eyewitnesses, said the guards "opened fire at point blank range. There was absolutely no prior warning."

"At no time," said another letter, "did anyone move toward or rush the fence."

"It would be pure suicide to attempt to escape over these three fences," declared another statement. "Anyone would be cut to pieces." It is amazing to me that such men as those who head the penal system in Florida would come up with such an obviously false account of this tragedy.

One man watching from a window testified that the guards "made a shooting gallery out of the ball diamond with live ammunition and (human) targets."

A high prison official, speaking to us confidentially, said Wainwright "has no real evidence those guys charged the fence."

The claim that only birdshot was used against the prisoners is also disputed by the lead pellets smuggled out to us. These definitely are generally used to kill deer.

We have received testimony from three prisoners that a submachinegun or other automatic weapon was used. Large calibre slugs were found, we have been informed, in two victims.

After the smuggled evidence reached us, we immediately asked Florida's Governor Reuben Askew for permission to enter the prison and interview inmates and guards. He ran for office last year, after all, on an "honesty" platform.

Askew at first refused, then conditionally agreed. Then he reneged again exactly one hour before my associate, Les Whitten, was to catch a plane for Raiford.

Wainwright's Response

The prisoners organized first-aid crews after the broadsides. One wrote that he was carrying a wounded man "when another officer with a gun told us to get our hands up over our head. I tried to explain about (the wounded man) but he cut me off, saying, 'Get your G. D. hands up or I'll kill you.' I raised one hand and held on to the (victim)."

From the hospital, an inmate wrote us that about 50 men, all convicts, were treated — two to them for testicle swelling. In both cases, the men had been kicked in the testicles for attempting to carry wounded convicts from the yard."

Wainwright spoke to us at length by telephone from inside the Raiford prison. "The last thing I wanted to do was use gunfire," he said. But he added that "I'm through negotiating" until the guards fully control the prison.

Has confirmed reports that had been leaked to us that 17 of the 21-man convict negotiating team had been locked up in the dread "Flat Top" isolation section. They had been confined, he said, because they had refused to obey orders.

As for the wounded, Wainwright said all were hit with birdshot except two were struck with slugs from either carbines or .45 calibre sub-machine guns. These heavier weapons were supposed to be fired in the air, not at prisoners, he said.

Wainwright, who is president of the prestigious American Correctional Association, added: "I recommended that you not be allowed inside" to talk with prisoners. The governor, so far at least, has gone along with the cover-up.

Laos Plan

The plan to drive across the Laotian border and cut off the Ho Chi Minh trail system was first proposed five years ago by General William Westmoreland, then the U.S. commander in Vietnam. He said it would take 260,000 American troops to carry out the operation. Then President Lyndon Johnson turned thumbs down on the idea.

Three months ago, the plan was revived in secret talks between South Vietnam's President Thieu and American Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. The details were worked out by General Creighton Abrams, the present U.S. commander, and General Cao Van Vien, the South Vietnamese Army Chief of Staff.

No American ground troops were used beyond the Laotian borders, and little more than 10,000 South Vietnamese soldiers crossed into Laos. It remains to be seen whether 10,000 South Vietnamese troops can do the job that General Westmoreland five years ago said would take 260,000 American troops.

South Vietnam Spy Units
Were in Laos Several Months

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It has never been announced, but for the past several months small teams of South Vietnamese have been operating in southern Laos.

These "black pajama" units are, in the main, former Special Forces officers and men, minus their American advisors.

These covert units, during this period, have ranged over selected areas, gathering intelligence on the location of North Vietnamese supply dumps and way stations, monitoring truck schedules and noting camouflage precautions along the Ho Chi Minh trails.

Their objective—to pinpoint targets precisely so that crack South Vietnamese units which recently moved into Laos could move in fast — and hopefully, move out with equal speed.

For time is crucial. The hope is to get the main South Vietnamese forces in and out of Laos within a very short period, if it can be managed.

To be blunt, this Laos operation is a very risky piece of business militarily. The Vietnamese realize this. So do the American tacticians.

For logically Hanoi should now make some violent response.

This is essential if North Vietnam is to maintain the morale of its forces, insure its supply lines and convince any sizable numbers of men and women in South Vietnam that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are a force to be reckoned with. Otherwise, Hanoi can have no hope of victory in the foreseeable future.

If the word gets out that Hanoi is a paper tiger, then Hanoi is through for now.

There is considerable worry, therefore, that while some of South Vietnam's major elite units are in Laos and Cambodia, the North Vietnamese-Viet Cong forces will mount an offensive or "uprising" at some well-known city in South Vietnam.

At one stroke psychologically, this could raise again the status of the VC North Vietnamese in the south and in the United States.

It is to guard against this possibility that American units have been stationed at points where there is the greatest likelihood of North Vietnamese - VC attacks (I Corps in South Vietnam where enemy forces outnumber Allied troops.)

The other major worry is that the North Vietnamese will ambush or surround and decisively defeat a major element of the South Vietnamese troops operating in Laos and Cambodia.

Psychologically, this would take the bloom off the sweeps.

In Laos, the enemy has superiority in numbers, is close to home bases and reinforcements. The terrain is ideal for ambushes, heavily jungled, mountainous and extremely difficult to monitor from the air.

It is known the Communists have been setting traps in the area. They have been busy these past several weeks building strong points and shifting troops toward Highway 9, main point of entry of the South Vietnamese.

Enemy Build-ups
Forced Laos Push

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It can now be reported that President Nixon approved the drive into Laos only after a long agonizing period of backing and filling, delay and soul searching.

What finally decided Nixon on action were the increasingly pessimistic reports from Cambodia and Laos and a supply build-up on the South Vietnam border.

A series of maps showing the battle situations faced by the South Vietnamese in the areas surrounding Phnom Penh and the equally serious plight of Prince Souvanna Phouma's armies in northern Laos may have been especially convincing. At least this is the impression a reporter gets from sources close to the President.

Combine this cloudy and disturbing knowledge with endless reports of extraordinarily heavy traffic on the Ho Chi Minh trails, where in one week the U.S. Air Force destroyed 1,000 North Vietnamese trucks moving south. Even so, the trucks still came on with no letup.

Especially worrisome here were reports that a great deal of the material that did get through the air strikes (some of the most intensive bombing of the war) was not being used. The Cambodian operations were being run on a shoestring. Activity continued low in Vietnam.

To the American and Vietnamese strategists this could mean only one thing: Ho's successors were stockpiling great amounts of arms, ammunition and supplies in the south.

A great deal of this material reportedly was being stored in the Cambodian sanctuary areas. Supplies were growing in depots in Laos near the South Vietnamese border.

An analysis of this data, as the South Vietnamese and Americans read it, pointed to major drives in South Vietnam and Cambodia sometime after May 1. (The rains would assure that the supply build-up had to be completed by that date.)

The South Vietnamese grew increasingly impatient as the facts filtered in. President Thieu's top advisers — political, economic and military — consider the next 10 months crucial for Vietnam's future.

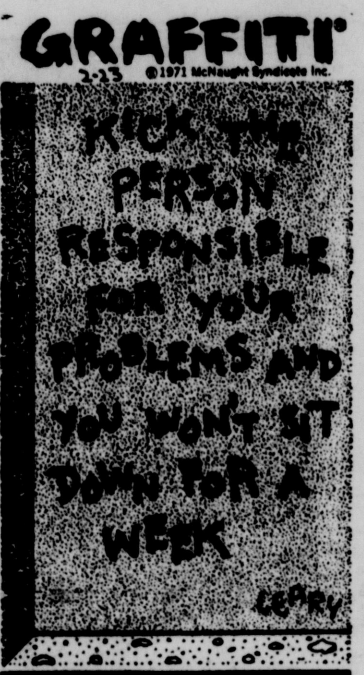

Village elections are scheduled for this summer, congressional elections in August and presidential elections in November.

A number of men in high places in Vietnam and the United States believe that if these elections are orderly and fairly administered, the result will be a major step forward in national political strength, which will in turn make possible major improvements in civil, military and economic administration.

Sizable North Vietnamese military offensives or staged uprisings could endanger this progress.

A shaky political and economic situation — with continued U.S. withdrawals — was something neither the Vietnamese nor American officials liked to think about.

Therefore military action had to be taken now.

Gifts, Surprises Planned for Freeman's Benefit Show

By DOROTHY A. NAREL
Woman's Page Editor

This year's preview of fashions in The Daily Freeman's benefit for the Ulster County Community Chest on Tuesday, March 16 in the auditorium of the J. Watson Bailey School is going to reach new heights.

More than 50 door prizes have been donated by the business community with the Kingston Savings Bank leading off with delightful token door gifts for everyone attending the show.

Other outstanding donors include the Ulster County Savings Bank which has given us a blender and fashionable comforter; a monetary gift from the Rondout National Bank; clock-radio from Savings and Loan Association of Kingston; an accent rug from Colonial City Carpet.

Perfumes will grace the awards table also. These have been donated through the courtesy of such outstanding companies as Lanvin, Fashion Two-Twenty, Yardley's and Estee Lauder.

Ten sets of beautiful place mats have been donated by Greenwald's Travel Agency as well as auto kits. Other awards will include a gift from London's; a plant from Valley Gardens; champagne from Hy Greenspan; Holiday Inn Cookbooks; and a Love Cup from Gloria Jean's Bridals Plus.

One of the top awards will be a large silver Revere bowl from Onida Silversmiths.

And more gifts are pouring in all the time.

Fashions will be the ultimate on the spring and summer parades. All ages, all sizes will be featured. The variety of designs and styles, mouth-watering colors and fine workmanship in this collection of top fashions will make this year's show one of the most exciting you've ever seen.

The finest stores in Ulster and Northern Dutchess Counties are going to be featured. Morning attire through formal evening wear will be on stage with some of the most notable personalities modeling.

One of the biggest surprises for this year's Fashion Preview is that THE MEN

ARE COMING — in the audience and on stage! Plans are now being completed to include some of the finest in men's attire with some of the best known gentlemen wearing them. These names will be announced. You're in for some big surprises.

Cooperation received from the local business community has been fantastic. Everyone has been doing his or her bit to put the show over the top for the benefit of the Chest. You will be learning about the work of these marvelous people periodically.

One third of our tickets are out already. So don't be disappointed this year — make early reservations by telephoning The Freeman or use the coupon published on the Woman's Pages. There were many disappointed people last year many of them within the industry itself.

Plans are being completed also for a special make-up session for the benefit of women models. Not only will the session demonstrate the proper use of make-up, but local beauty consultants will be on hand the night of the show to assist the models with their cosmetics.

Details will be announced when plans have been completed.

We're going to have a barrel of fun on Tuesday, March 16 at 7:30 p.m. This is our third annual fashion show given for the benefit of the Chest. Don't miss it!

Yoga Is Answer To Life's Pressure

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leading Washington women and men are turning to yoga as the answer to life's hectic pressures. It's the new "in" thing with the beautiful people.

Their teacher is an exotic, graceful Indian woman, Savitri Ahuja, wife of a former diplomat, who has a waiting list of VIPs for her classes in the ancient art of exercises for the body and mind.

It's not all standing on your head, as some may think.

Mrs. Ahuja, who also is a professional Indian dancer, has a number of students from officialdom.

One is Mrs. Edmund Muskie, wife of the Maine senator who stands as the front runner in the polls to oppose President Nixon in 1972.

The wives of several other senators, socialites as well as career women, attend the classes, all wearing leotards, in the studio of Mrs. Ahuja's home.

She also has a number of male students and a special class for couples.

"Everyone in Washington is so up tight and tense," explained one yoga pupil. "This is a way to relax." Many sign up to slim down, but the main emphasis is on relieving stress and renewing energy.

Mrs. Muskie says when she finishes a class "I have the energy to do things."

"They come to me for health and beauty," says the Bombay-born Hindu teacher. "Some even want to put on weight. Some want to look young. Many come to find peace of mind."

"Yoga is not like the Western system of exercise which uses up energy. In yoga you renew yourself. It calms a person."

She helps many of her students to overcome back troubles and arthritic pains through exercises for the spine. "The spine is life," she says.

Breathing is another important factor in yoga. "You don't learn yoga," she explained, "you experience it. And it helps you know your body better than you ever knew before."

COSMETIC SESSION — Members of St. Joseph's Rosary Society in Kingston learned about the proper technique in applying make-up at a meeting of the group Monday night. The demonstration was provided through the courtesy of Vanda Beauty Counselors. On hand for the session were (L-R) Mrs. Carol Mayone, unit advisor; Mrs. Alice Tipp of Saugerties, beauty consultant; Mrs. Emma Aprea, program chairman; and Mrs. Ann Bartz, president of the society. Ralph Mitchell Jr. Named to Dean's List Recently at RPI

Ralph Mitchell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mitchell Sr. of 133 O'Neil Street, Kingston, was named to the dean's list for the first semester of his junior year at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Mitchell, an electrical engineering major, was inducted into two honor societies, the Engineer Honor Society which is Eta Kappa Nu, and the Electronic Engineer Society which is Tau Beta Pi.

Miss Pamela Anne Schomer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Schomer Sr. of Stony Run Apartments, Kingston, became the bride of Charles Arthur Foehser, son of Lt. Col. Arthur Foehser (USAR ret.) and Mrs. Foehser of Pasadena, Md., on Saturday, Feb. 13 at Old Dutch Reformed Church, Kingston. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Fred J.K. Ertel of Kingston and the late Fred J. K. Ertel.

The Rev. Arthur Oudemool officiated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Cindy Jones, Organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Sprays of white carnations and greens decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride selected a gown of silk satin faille, fashioned with a high neckline and long full sleeves. The neckline, sleeves and empire waist were banded with Venice lace. A wide panel of lace extended from the neckline to the hem and the A-line skirt swept back into a chapel length circular train. A custom made Dior bow of matching fabric and lace was secured to a cathedral length silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade of carnations accented with two white roses.

Ellen W. St. John of 27 Burgevin Street, Kingston, was maid of honor for her cousin in an empire style gown of raspberry Saki, fashioned with a high neckline and long full sleeves. The neckline and sleeves featured ruffles of white Florentine lace which also formed a jabot on the bodice. The waistline was encircled with matching satin ribbon which terminated in a bow and streamer detail at the back. She wore a Dior bow of matching fabric and carried a cascade of pink carnations.

Attendants were Miss Kristina Steele of Boston, Mass.; Miss Ruth Stephens, Kingston; Mrs. Robert Wells, Pawling; and Mrs. James Kunkel of Mystic, Conn. Bianca P. Vogel, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. They wore bon bon pink gowns, styled identically to that of the honor attendant's and carried nosegays of dark pink carnations.

Kenneth Klunder, uncle of the bridegroom, Flint, Mich. was best man. Ushers were John F. Schomer Jr., James E. Schomer brothers of the bride, Kingston; Kent St. John, Kingston, cousin of the bride; John F. Hartge, Galesville, Md.; and George P. Hanson, Annapolis, Md.

A reception for 150 guests was held at Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston.

For her wedding trip to New York, the bride chose a mid-length, two piece navy blue outfit trimmed with white, navy blue accessories, and carried one red rose.

The bride, a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1964, and Mt. Ida Junior College, Newton, Mass., class of 1967, was employed by Harvard Cooperative Society, Boston, Mass. She is a member of the Junior League of Boston.

Her husband, a 1965 graduate of New York Military Academy, served four years in the U.S. Army and was stationed in Vietnam for 23 months. He is enrolled at Anne Arundel Community College, Maryland.

Mr. and Mrs. Foehser will reside at 437 Edgewater, North Shore on the Magogy, Pasadena, Md.

VFW Auxiliary Conference Held in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Sidney Lane, past state president of the veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, who is presently serving as the president of Joyce Schirick Auxiliary No. 1386, VFW in Kingston has returned from the national mid-winter conference of the Ladies Auxiliary to the VFW which was held at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Washington, D.C., Feb. 12-14. Mrs. Burton Coons of Red Hook, Department Junior vice president, also attended.

One of the highlights of the conference was the giving of the auxiliary's highest honor, the Better World Award, to H. Ross Perot. Mr. Perot is the Dallas businessman who attempted to fly Christmas dinners, mail and medicine to American Prisoners of war in North Vietnam in 1969. Mr. Perot urged his audience to arouse concern for the prisoners in their home communities. He encourages citizen groups from every state to fly to Paris to attempt to talk to North Vietnamese officials.

National President Mrs. Alex Cottone of Olean and National Commander Herbert Rainwater of San Bernardino, Calif. at the National Convention held in Miami in August 1970 announced a special project in behalf of the POWs. During September through the joint efforts of the men and women of the VFW, better than two million signatures were collected on petitions. These two national leaders are now urging Congress to proclaim the week of March 21-27 as National Week of Concern for Prisoners of War Missing in Action. All interested persons are asked to write their Congressmen concerning this.

The auxiliary members were also privileged to hear Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan Koonz, Director of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, who said that myths about women's roles and men's roles had "made our children deny their God given talents and submerge their real interests under a cloak of masculinity and femininity." She quoted figures to indicate that most working women are in the labor force because of financial need rather than working for luxuries. She urged women to press for equal job opportunities and equal pay for equal work.

The three day conference was attended by 425 women including state auxiliary presidents, national officers, program directors and other auxiliary members. The VFW Auxiliary, one of the largest organizations of women volunteers in the world, conducts patriotic, youth and community service programs as well as programs to assist veterans and their families. It has almost a half million members in 6,500 local units across the United States.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

Dear Heloise:

While cleaning the plastic silverware organizer that fits into the drawer, I decided to use silver polish to remove the black marks that collect on it.

Don't know why I hadn't thought of that before because it really did a good job.

Mrs. W. Gilbert

Dear Heloise:

If you have a camper (pickup) mount a few spice racks inside the closet door. These racks make dandy places to put toothpaste, toothbrush, etc.

You'll find dozens of articles that can be tucked away in these racks - ever so convenient.

Mary Wegner

Dear Heloise:

Did you know that you can make chiffon and angel food cakes in foil-lined oven-tempered glass dishes that are 13x9x2 inches?

Leave the foil on the cake in the dish until cool. This prevents shrinkage and keeps the cake moist.

Maybe this tip will help some young bride who doesn't have a tube pan.

Mrs. Fred Drake

Dear Heloise:

I gave my future daughter-in-law a gift that really seemed to mean a lot to her.

I went through a lot of old photos and found different pictures of my son from his christening picture to his army picture (even in all).

Then bought a picture frame (12" x 16") and mounted them according to his age with his army picture in the middle.

KHS Swimmers Capture Fourth DUSO Title

FALLSBURG — With their fourth DUSO League swimming championship an accomplished fact, Kingston High School's crack natators have two major objectives remaining in the 1970-71 season. First is the Section 9 championship which will be contested at New Paltz in March and, secondly, an undefeated season in DUSO competition. Led by Mike O'Hara and Fred Robinson doubles, the Maroons routed homestanding Fallsburg Comets, 67-28, here Thursday to win their third title in the last four years. Coach Ron Gabriel's swimmers won in over last year and the boys set a goal for themselves at the 1969 and came back to take the 1970 and current crown. Gabriele declined to pinpoint any specific reasons for Kingston's fine season. "Naturally, I feel terrific about another championship," he said. "I would have to say that we won because everybody improved over last year and the boys set a goal for themselves at the start of the season—an unbeaten DUSO slate. If we get by Hamersham on Feb. 22, we'll achieve that goal." The Kingston coach said he felt Kingston would be co-favored with Warwick High in the Section 9 meet. The teams have split two matches this season. O'Hara and Robinson completed the most spectacular burg pool record set by Jack 100.95 points in the diving event. The former, who won the 200 individual medley and 100-yard backstroke, won 25 of 26 with Sue Helmrich swimming matches. Robinson, winner in the first leg of the 200 medley, John Gogg (200 free) and John Edwards (100 breast) were other Kingston winners. A notable Fallsburg performance was Tom Halchack's

CARR IN MOTION — Austin Carr, Notre Dame's All-America guard and second highest scorer in the nation, lets one go from the midst of a knot of Fordham Rams in game at Madison Square Garden Thursday. Guarding Carr are Bill Mainor (20) and Bob Larbes (C). (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Rams Stun Irish, 94-88; And It Was All for Charlie

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Fordham's Charlie Yelverton had just fouled out after a super performance, the applause of 19,500 rocking rafter-jammed Madison Square Garden.

So what do you do when you lose your wonder player with everything riding on the last seven minutes? "Charlie had been coming through for us for 19 games, so it was our turn to win one for him," said Bill Mainor.

And the Rams did—stunning Notre Dame 94-88 Thursday night in an emotion-charged college basketball game. "We said we'd bring it back for Charlie," Mainor piped over ear-splitting huzzahs of the Fordham dressing room. "It seems like a smaller team does better under pressure than a large team."

"And everybody did the job for us, although giving away four, five inches in height. We played more with our hearts than with our ability." More than a few in the animated audience would dispute that last statement, for it was Yelverton's ability that kept the Rams in the game and Mainor's that won it for them.

King Charles scored 28 points, had 11 rebounds, blocked several shots and made many key steals that fired the 18th-ranked Rams to a 75-73 lead over the 14th-ranked Irish with seven minutes left.

Then Yelverton committed "a stupid, reach in foul" under the basket and had to make that agonizing stroll to the bench, bringing the thunderous crowd to its feet. The applause lasted more than a minute.

Mainor, charged with guarding Notre Dame's high-scoring Austin Carr, scored only four points in the first half. Then, when Yelverton sat down near the end, Mainor punched through 13 of the Rams' last 19 points and wound up with 27.

Mainor, charged with guarding 10 straight, mostly on soft out side jumpers, to power the Rams to a 94-86 lead with 18 seconds remaining.

And although Carr scored a game-high 29 points, Mainor didn't allow the Irish' great guard a point in the last, critical seven minutes.

Don Dida, whom Perry rates "all-region" led the Westcos with 15 points. Big John Isallo dunked 14 and Ron Springer added 12. Perry was the only Senator in double figures.

The Region XV selections committee meets here Sunday. After last night, the Senators are not holding their breath.

The scores: ULSTER (49) FG F P T W'ESTCHESTER (47) FG F P T Berry 9 5 23 Springer 5 2 12 Delosa 1 2 4 Szebera 2 2 6 McDonald 2 0 4 Isallo 5 4 15 Cville 3 0 6 Harris 4 1 9 Weeks 3 2 8 Dida 6 3 15 Harder 0 1 1 Hickey 4 0 8 Govantes 1 1 3 Fielder 0 1 1 19 11 49 27 13 47 Score at Half: ULCC, 21; Westcos, 25.

Carr was unconsolable in the loser's low-key dressing room.

"Too many turnovers lost it for us," said the nation's second leading scorer with a 37-point average. "It was just a bad floor game."

Why wasn't he getting the ball at the end? "Fordham was pressing and it just seemed the flow of the game was being funneled away from me," said Carr, who indicated the loss might cost the Irish, now 14-7, an at-large berth in the NCAA post-season tournament.

"We'll just have to get out and win our next five games," said Carr, his eyes watching the floor.

The Garden clash was the second game of a doubleheader. Temple starved Manhattan with a tough zone in the opener, allowing the Jaspers just one field goal in the first 12 minutes, for a 64-47 victory.

In a relatively light schedule around the nation, Memphis State whipped Bradley 74-70. St.

Buchanan Nips Frazier For 'Fighter of Year'

By ED SCHUYLER JR. Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Although Muhammad Ali returned to the boxing scene and Joe Frazier gained universal recognition as world heavyweight champion, the biggest fighter of 1970, in the eyes of the Boxing Writers Association, was 5-foot-7½ Ken Buchanan of Scotland.

Buchanan, who lost the only fight of his career in 1970 but also won the world lightweight title, was voted the Edward J. Neil Memorial trophy Thursday as fighter of the year.

The stylish boxer edged Frazier 14-13 in a runoff vote. Ali was third on the first ballot. Don Dunphy, whose voice has brought a multitude of fights to fans throughout the world, was named winner of the James J. Walker Memorial Award for long and meritorious service to boxing.

Another easy winner was Dick Sadler, manager of unbeaten heavyweight contender George Foreman, who won the Al Buck Memorial Award of manager of the year.

Buchanan lost his 1970 debut, a 15-round decision to Spaniard Miguel Velazquez in Madrid for the vacant European lightweight title.

The 25-year-old Scot then won the rest of his 1970 fights, four by decision and one by knockout, with one of the decisions bringing him the world lightweight crown in a 15-rounder against Ismael Laguna under a broiling sun in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in September.

Another one of his decisions was over previously unbeaten Donato Paduano in a 10-round non-title fight on the Ali-Oscar Bonavena card in which Buchanan's dazzling exhibition of boxing earned him a standing ovation from the sellout Madison Square Garden crowd. Buchanan's first fight this year, which brought his record to 38-1, was a 15-round decision over Ruben Navarro of Mexico in a title defense in Los Angeles.

Buchanan is the fourth foreign fighter to win the 33-year-old

Louis downed North Texas 65-61 and Denver tripped Oklahoma City 64-63.

Memphis State made of 15 free throws in the last 11 minutes and Jim Douglass provided the clincher with a 10-foot corner shot with 3:20 left that gave the Tigers a never-topped 68-66 lead over Bradley.

St. Louis kept within bailing distance of Missouri Valley—leading Louisville with the victory over North Texas. The Billikens are within a half-game of the MVC pacers.

Senators' Tourney Chances Seem Dim

VALHALLA — Ulster County Community College blew its chance to earn an invitation to the Region XV tournament here Thursday night and in the words of a disappointed Coach Mike Perry, "We probably didn't deserve it, anyway."

Perry was reacting to the UCCC's 67-49 loss to Westchester Community, the No. 1 rated team in Region XV, which now boasts a 25-3 record and probably will be top-seeded in the regional championships. The Senators are left with a 13-11 record and the empty feeling that they will miss the regionals for the first time in four years.

Captain Glenn Berry led Ulster with 23 points, hitting 9 for 19 (47 per cent) but the rest of the team hit rock bottom for the season.

"You can't win when you get only 6 out of 28 from your guards," said Perry, alluding to Roger Govantes (1-10), Gary McDonald (2-8) and George Cville (3-10).

Twenty-nine Turnovers

Errors and turnovers (there were 29 of them) doomed the Senators, who came close twice and frittered their chances away on mistakes. The Westcos led 28-21 at halftime but two minutes into the second half, Ulster picked off six straight points to bring the score to 30-27. Then came three straight UCCC turnovers and Westchester dominated the game the rest of the way.

The 49 points did not represent a career-low for Perry, coached teams. "They beat us 46-43 in a slowdown at Valhalla a couple seasons ago," Perry recalled. The Westcos, however, proved why they are a nationally ranked team on defense.

Dida Leads Westcos

Don Dida, whom Perry rates "all-region" led the Westcos with 15 points. Big John Isallo dunked 14 and Ron Springer added 12. Perry was the only Senator in double figures.

The Region XV selections committee meets here Sunday. After last night, the Senators are not holding their breath.

850th for Gordie

United Press International It was typical Gordie Howe — taking two pucks for a friend.

The all-time National Hockey League star scored his 850th goal in combined regular season and playoff action Thursday night in a 5-3 Detroit Red Wings victory over the Minnesota North Stars.

But just before he slipped out the clubhouse door Howe filched a couple of pucks — because a friend had asked him to.

"Don't let Lefty (Wilson, the Red Wings' trainer) see me," Howe laughed in his impish manner. Later he explained: "They're for a football friend."

Buffalo tied Pittsburgh 6-6 in the only other NHL game played. Howe's power play goal, the 783rd of his career in regular season games, put him at 20 goals for the season — a figure he has hit 22 of his 25 years in the league. It finished a rally that saw Detroit come from a 2-1 deficit to a 4-2 lead in a 4:03 span of the second period.

"I'm glad I got it because it was a game winner," he 43-year-old right wing said.

Red Berenson collected his 17th goal of the season and first as a Red Wing since coming to Detroit from St. Louis five games ago while Alex Delvecchio began the Detroit scoring in the first period with his 14th.

Curb on Drugs Sought by Kuhn

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball has taken cognizance of the drug problem and instituted a program to protect the integrity of the game. "We're not naive about the nature of the problem or the fact that in baseball there has been some use of pills in the amphetamine and barbiturates group," Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Thursday in announcing a long term Drug Education and Prevention Program for professional baseball.

The commissioner did not mention the names of any players who may have used drugs to stimulate their performance.

"Young people are continually coming into baseball and they have never been so exposed to drugs as they are today," Kuhn said. He declared that extreme vigilance is necessary to prevent the emergence of a drug abuse problem in the game.

"We want to let all baseball personnel know what baseball's attitude is toward the problem, in the interest of the players' health, their performance and the integrity of the game."

Kuhn said the program was recommended by the team physicians of the 24 major league clubs and will start with three regional seminars next month.

Orange Accepts Middies

MIDDLETOWN — Orange County Interscholastic Athletic Association has accepted Middletown High in all sports except football, bringing the total of teams in the league to 15.

Simultaneously, the OCIAA rejected an application for its second time this year and took no action on a previous application from Fallsburg. "The Middies' transfer into the Orange circuit leaves Kingston and Newburgh with a two-team DUSO League and puts the Goldbacks pretty much at sea. Monticello athletic director Edward Kennedy expressed severe disappointment that the Monties were not accepted. Kingston High, according to Athletic Director Bill Hurley, is biding its time for a favorable nod from the Dutchess County Scholastic League (DCSL).

"After all," said Hurley, "we've been applying for years and while they have tabled our application year after year, they have yet to reject us completely."

KHS Seeks Bid; OCS Points for Title

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON — Revenge and the possibility of being eliminated from the Section Nine basketball playoffs should be enough incentive for Kingston High School when it takes the floor tonight at 8 p.m. in Middletown for the key game on the area schedule.

Ontario's Indians will have far less pressure on them in Pine Bush, where they will try to seal the lid on the UCAL race in this evening's co-feature. Other matches pair New Paltz at Marlboro; Wallkill at Rondout; Highland at Coleman; Monticello at Ellenville; Haldane at Red Hook; Saugerties at Arlington; Pine Plains at Rhinebeck; and Oakwood at Cardinal Farley.

In the lone college action, New Paltz State hosts Genesee State in Elting Gym at 7:40 p.m. Middlesex won first.

Hard as it may be to swallow, Kingston could find itself on the sidelines for the upcoming sectional showdown despite a fine 11-4 record. All the Maroons have to do is lose to Middle-town as they did on Jan. 22.

Both squads are 2-2 in the DUSO League, trailing undefeated and untouchable Newburgh. Chances are that Section selectors won't look past the top two teams in the Dutchess-Ulster-Sullivan-Orange loop making tonight's clash pivotal.

When the teams first met, KHS held a seven point lead with five minutes remaining. But a weird five-point play involving a technical foul turned the game around and the Middle-dies eventually won, 63-59. Maroon coach Mike Rienzo later called the loss "just one of those games." Kingston could afford "one of those games" then. Now they can't.

However, just as a Middle-town win seemed out of the question before the first get-together, a repeat looks even more impossible, especially since Kingston will have the services of Herman Simon for this one.

The locals' star freshman guard was still under suspension in January and sat out the Middle loss. This time he'll be very much in evidence and should spell the difference.

The play of Vito Platts, who was held to seven in the MHS defeat, is also expected to be improved for tonight's return affair.

Ontario needs one more win to officially end the Ulster County Athletic League's run for first place. Coming off the crucial triumph at New Paltz on Tuesday, there's little reason to believe that the Indians will lose to last place Pine Bush.

The Boiceville squad's entire starting five is listed on the UCAL top 15 scoring charts headed by guard Joe Bush (4th) and center Dan Smith (5th). Dan Brown, Vlad Hoyt, and Steve Frasier are 13, 14, and 15 respectively.

Interest in the other two league games will center on Rich Gerentine of Marlboro trying to catch Bill McAfee of Wallkill for UCAL point honors. Gerentine has 190 in 10 games to the 204 by leader McAfee.

Marlboro will be seeking to get back at the visiting Hugies for a loss they pinned on them in what was then an important league game. Guard George Salinovich, who calls the Marlboro plays, was ejected early in that first encounter and his loss was a blow to the Dukes in the 82-70 setback.

Little Coleman will have its hands full against big, physical Highland in the Statesman Gym. Ron and Perry Monroe knocked off JAC in a rough one at Highland earlier this season.

Knicks Nip San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The limping New York Knicks defeated a 5-foot-9 rookie guard but the little man feared his coach and when the dust had cleared, the world champion Knicks had emerged with a 116-115 victory.

But not before the smallest man to play in the National Basketball Association in a long time gave New York Coach Red Holtzman a scare Thursday night.

Twice trailing, the San Diego Rockets inserted Calvin Murphy in the lineup and the graduate of Niagara sparked a comeback. Once New York led 16-4 but Murphy brought his men back to a 53-51 halftime and 83-80 after three periods.

Then, when the Knicks jumped ahead 110-98 and were rolling, in came Murphy again to bring the home team back. His clutch basket and free throw shooting put the Rockets only a point down with five seconds to play.

Larry Siegfried, acting Rocket coach after Alex Hannum was ejected on technical fouls, called time out and set up the play.

"It was supposed to be a drive to the bucket by Stu Lantz. We knew they'd converge on E," Siegfried, reserve guard and former Boston Celtic, said, referring to Elvin Hayes.

Big John Trapp passed the ball in to Murphy, who wheeled and drove to the right. He was 20 feet from the basket and feared a 5-foot-9 rookie guard but the little man feared his coach and when the dust had cleared, the world champion Knicks had emerged with a 116-115 victory.

Murphy flipped the ball to Hayes on the left side, 20 feet out, and as Elvin whirled, the buzzer sounded. The game was over.

"As a rookie, my job is to follow orders," Murphy explained. "Don't be a hero on your own." He admitted he thought about shooting or driving but "my orders were to pass. I feel I did my job, as I was told."

Murphy wound up with 28 points, giving him 81 in four games this year with New York. He has a 14.9 average against the league.

Hayes, who was 13-of-30 from the field, had 33 points but Walt Frazier of the Knicks, had 36 and Dick Barnett added 27 for the winners.

The victory was only the second in the last nine New York games, leaving the Knicks with a 42-25 record atop the NBA's Atlantic Division.

The defeat leaves San Diego 29-38, 12 games back of Los Angeles in the Pacific Division. In the only other pro basketball game played, at Portland, the Los Angeles Lakers romped over the Trail Blazers 136-114.

Larry Petersen Slams 700 Series

KINGSTON — The Brothers Petersen—Larry and Herb—launched their weekly International League assault on the tenpins with definite design on a 700 triple.

Larry made it, Herb didn't. Larry, the elder, put together games of 263, 180 and 257 to hit the coveted score on the nose. It was the 18th of the current season in the Kingston area and the umpteenth of Larry's career.

Brother Herb fell off after a 266 opener to 195 and 202 and settled for No. 2 spot with 663. Third place went to Jack Ferraro with 255, 214-653.

Other qualifiers included Gary Aidala with 216, 230-630; Jake Smith 242-622, Bill Noreika 234-618, Joe Wilson 226-618, Kildy Corrado 233-609, Jim Peterson 213-608, Frank Ferrandino 214-607, Leroy Lewis 209-603, Harold Broskie 243-601.

SIGNAL LIGHTS AT WEST CAMP READY TO BE ACTIVATED
(Freeman photo by Kruh)

'Deadman's Corridor' — Some Control for Now

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN
WEST CAMP

The long-awaited public hearing on the Saugerties-Catskill 9W corridor realignment proposal has been projected to about June, depending on certain variables, according to a State Transportation Department spokesman in Albany.

In the meantime the public reaction reflected in a petition asking for action late last year has brought recognition from the department that there is a necessity for some means of control on at least one of the trouble spots on, what is commonly known in the Malden-West Camp area as "deadman's corridor."

An electric timing signal apparatus providing for one-way traffic through the West Camp railroad overpass has been installed and is expected to be activated in the next few days, according to Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, who has been pushing for action on the hazardous condition of the state highway.

There is already a similar signal device at the Alsen overpass, another danger spot on the Saugerties-Catskill corridor.

For those citizens who would like to write to Albany on the matter, the State Department of Transportation project number is 1123. The address of the department is 1220 Washington Avenue, State Campus, Albany, 12226.

A department timetable revealed at an informational meeting late in October planned for a corridor public hearing in December or January. This hearing has now been extended to June. Both the Ulster County assemblyman and the department spokesman note that the financing of the project is the current drawback.

The proposed reconstruction project embraces about 8.2 miles of Route 9W from Malden to the Catskill line.

Of the three alignments on the department's drawings, the proposal generally to the east of the existing highway is the one receiving general acceptance from residents of the area and county and town officials.

The informational meetings brought out that the project when approved would be in two phases. The first stage would be construction of approximately four miles from the Hamlet of Malden in Ulster County beyond the Greene County line to Malden railroad trestle, Deadman's Curve at West Camp and the one-lane railroad underpass at Alsen.

The route would have a right-of-way between 130 and 150 feet. The acquisition of properties and grading would be for four lanes. However, the first phase would be only two lanes. The remaining two lanes, 12 feet wide with 12 feet shoulder would be built at a later date and would provide a median separation.

Informational meetings were held in both West Camp and Cementon at which time the department's proposal was outlined with maps showing the proposed alternate alignments.

Steingut Critical of Language

Bell Named Auburn Prober

ALBANY The Democratic Leader of the State Assembly took "vigorous exception" today to the "unfortunate choice of language" in a press statement announcing the appointment of a bipartisan committee to investigate conditions at the Auburn State Prison.

The comment by Assemblyman Stanley Steingut, referred to an announcement from the Office of Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea of the appointment Tuesday of three Republican Assemblymen, one of whom is Ulster County's Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and two Democrats to a special committee.

The statement, according to Steingut, said the panel was formed at the request of Republican Assemblyman Steve Riford of Auburn. Riford was quoted as saying he wished to "spike allegations" made against the prison and its staff by Buffalo Democratic Assemblyman Arthur Eve.

"We appointed two members of this committee in a spirit of bipartisanship. We take vigorous exception to this unfortunate choice of language and its obvious implications.

"We wish to state unequivocally, therefore, that the Democratic members of this panel will not be a party to any whitewash or alleged effort to 'spike allegations,' from whatever source.

"Our members will investigate the charges and the general conditions at the prison objectively. We will not prejudge.

"But we will make the true facts available to the public even if it requires filing a minority report," Steingut said.

The committee, which meets today for its initial session includes, in addition to Bell, Assemblyman Edward F. Crawford of Oswego and Oneida Counties, and Assemblyman Thomas J. Murphy of Onondaga County, all Republicans. The two Democratic committee members are Assemblyman Michael L. McCarthy of Erie County and Assemblyman Mark T. Southall of New York City.

Assemblyman Riford is not serving on the committee evaluating the correctional facility charges.

Earlier this week Riford said that Eve's charges were unfounded and that he (Riford) visited the Auburn Correctional Facility with Sen. Theodore Day last week. The visit was unannounced to the staff and inmates.

Assemblyman Riford said he interviewed inmates and made a complete inspection of the prison, including the segregation area. He stated: "Senator Day and I are satisfied that the charges of brutality, severe treatment, poor sanitary conditions and so on, are without foundation. We feel that last week's statement is harmful to the staff of Auburn and its morale. It is shameful that a report like this can gain so much publicity. I staff of Auburn—a staff that want to take all possible action to inform the public on the job under extremely difficult conditions," he stated.

Assemblyman Riford called attention to the report of the Senate Committee on Crime and Correction pertaining to Nov. 4 riot at Auburn. "Senator Day and I are in complete agreement with the findings of that report," he stated.

"I am confident that the report of Speaker Duryea's committee will vindicate the staff of Auburn— a staff that has been doing an outstanding job under extremely difficult conditions," he stated.

Schultz Cites Help Shortage In County Probation Department

KINGSTON — Population growth and the ever-increasing rise in crime and delinquency is reflected in the increased work load that the Ulster County Probation Department has experienced in recent years, according to director of probation, Charles E. Schultz.

In his annual report to Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature and the County Board, Schultz said that despite the present vacant positions within his department and the increased case load, the department has endeavored to provide Ulster County with probation services of the highest quality.

Schultz notes that the number of individuals placed on probation by the County Court was drastically reduced in number during 1970.

"Sadly enough the reasons for this reduction were not the moderated need for probation supervision but rather the inadequacy of this department to provide supervision," Schultz said.

Explaining further he said that four out of six positions became vacant during the year due to leaves of absence and/or resignation.

"Thereafter priority was placed on the completion of the pre-sentence investigations for the court in order that there would be no further delay in reducing the court calendar."

"If and when this department is able to retain trained probation officers (and this will only be accomplished when an adequate salary has been established) one can expect that the probation supervision case load will be drastically increased," he said.

With regard to intake service for Family Court, Schultz told of four specific tasks in the probation field. They are investigation, supervision, collection of support payments and intake.

A good investigation, he continued, or pre-sentencing report enables the court to properly dispose of an individual with the full knowledge that the safety of society and the needs of the defendant are being met.

"The supervision phase is rewarding to the probation officer who feels this is the most important part and certainly the most challenging part of his probation duties."

Schultz said that the collection of support payments is only rewarding to the families desperately in need of the funds collected and to the taxpayer who would otherwise have to provide additional funds through the welfare system.

But, he added, "it is at the intake level that the probation officer receives the full impact of how many families, just in our small segment of society, are in need of professional skills. If there was not an intake service the already burdened Family Court would be completely swamped."

The record shows that in 1969, 2,319 persons were provided with information while there were 3,638 in 1970.

Persons provided with counseling service in 1969 numbered 1,145 with four more than that in 1970. During 1969, 505 cases were presented to Family Court and there were 540 in 1970 for a total increase of 1,358.

Schultz indicated that there has been an increase in payment of money for family support with $749,090 in 1969, going to $821,946.94 in 1970.

The director said he "did not wish to imply that this is an improvement. As a social worker," he said, "I reject the theory of increased payment of family

Residents in Red Hook District Hear About Role of Psychologist

RED HOOK — Two school psychologists explained their role to a group of Red Hook area residents Thursday night, dispelling much of the doubt and pessimism about their trade and exposing problems in the average public school system.

Dr. Richard Carlson and Dr. Robert Catuccio, both in residence at the Astor Home for Children, serve as part of a three-man team which attacks individual and sometimes group problems of the everyday school child, from kindergarten to senior.

Methods differ, and Carlson explained that many schools are now allowing high school students to "refer themselves" to a walk-in clinic to discuss things which are bothering them. This is the case in both the Red Hook and Rhinebeck systems.

Carlson said that the school psychologist does not do "therapy per se," but some extended counseling. The two main jobs in which they are involved is dealing with testing "problem" children as individuals, and encompassing "general procedures to meet recurrent problems."

He noted that the schools get pressured for many problems not originating in the schools, such as the increasing frequency of hyperkinetic children.

Catuccio said that the school psychologist acts in some cases as a consultant for the principal, and sometimes as consultant to the teachers.

He pointed out one system in which he worked where he received "carte blanche," which he termed most efficient because the "psychologist is the best judge of which tool in his repertoire is most efficacious."

Both men made reference to the pressures experienced by school children, from home and from school.

"Anyone can flip out if you put enough pressure on him," said Catuccio. He added that the "kids who refer themselves in the clinic are generally 'on the brink' and are generally the same types who might be referred by administrators."

Both men agreed that "parents are wrong to put unrealistic demands on kids." Catuccio said that many children "are terrified of being wrong," when asked a question.

In answer to several questions, Carlson said that the "worst things as a parent is inconsistency." He felt that parents can allow children to act out aggressions, but both men agreed that "limits must be set" and consistently enforced.

Another problem with attempting to help the child in school, no matter what the problem, was summed up by this statement: "Some parental disregard is awesome." Catuccio said that some parents just will

Foster Parents Get New Hope, Appeals Court Will Hear Case

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn couple fighting to prevent the return of their adopted daughter to her natural mother took on new hope today after the state's top court agreed to hear their case.

The Court of Appeals in Albany Thursday granted to Jean and Nicholas DeMartino and the Spence-Chapin Adoption Agency, which handled the adoption, the right to appeal lower court decisions ordering the return of the DeMartinos' 9-month-old daughter Lenore to her original mother, Olga Scarpetta.

"This is a kind of birthday present for us," Mrs. DeMartino said after learning of the ruling, "because Lenore is nine months old today." She said it was the first step toward our goal of keeping our baby."

Her husband said he was smiling for the first time in a long while.

The unwed Miss Scarpetta, who legally signed the child over to the adoption agency, is seeking to regain custody of her. The state Supreme Court and its Appellate Division have upheld her suit.

Under state law, the natural mother has the right to reclaim her child until the final adoption papers are signed by a judge. This takes as long as a year in some cases.

Because of the DeMartino case, and a similar case on Long Island, bills have been introduced in the state legislature to reduce the time during which the natural mother can reclaim a child.

In announcing that it would hear the appeal during the week of March 1, the Court of Appeals denied a request by the DeMartinos' lawyer, Jacob D. Fuchsberg that he be allowed to make an oral argument at the hearing since the agency filed the appeal. The couple, however, will be permitted to submit a brief.

The DeMartinos adopted Lenore last June but Miss Scarpetta decided within a month after surrendering the child that she wanted it back.

The lower courts ruled that the agency had acted with "undue haste" in arranging the adoption.

Fuchsberg said Thursday the court ruling "is the first legal ray of hope. It means that for the first time they (the DeMartinos) will have something to say about their rights and the future of the baby."

The crux of the whole thing is that it affects all adoptive parents," said DeMartino. "There are thousands of people who are similarly situated."

Fuchsberg said the thrust of their case will be that "no court should have the right to destroy, attack or try out the relationship built between parents and an adoptive child" without hearing from the parents and others connected with her welfare.

Mothers March on Sunday

KINGSTON

"Stand up and be counted in the fight against birth defects," urges Mrs. James Devine Jr., March of Dimes chairman for the 1971 Mother's March in the City of Kingston.

The traditional doorbell ringing will take place Sunday, Feb. 21. Prevention of birth defects, which now strikes some quarter of a million American infants annually is the challenging goal of the March of Dimes, she adds.

"The greatest gift a mother receives is perfect health for her child," Mrs. Devine said. "Yet, during the brief time it takes to read this story a mother will be denied that joy. Every other minute—or 700 times a day—a child is born in our country with a significant birth defect." "The March of Dimes is working to prevent these tragedies and supports research, over 100 birth defects centers, for treatment, and educational programs aimed at this goal," she explained. "It is hardly necessary to tell you that these commitments are very costly and need public support."

For these reasons, women around the country volunteer to canvass their communities in an annual appeal for contributions. Mrs. Devine asks for the vigorous support of all of the people of the City of Kingston. Through volunteer time and generous contributions. "This is an ideal opportunity for those who care about the quality of life to step forward," Mrs. Devine adds.

Mrs. Devine also released some facts and figures of Ulster County Chapter March of Dimes: "Our local Chapter is a health organization collecting funds for the fight against polio and birth defects. From 1952 to May 1970 our local Chapter collected $200,000 and we spent $150,000 for patient care for operations, braces and others. We also spent $1,160 on our vaccine program which was donated to the Ulster County Health Department for the Baby Health Clinics."

"Other aid went to the Treatment Center at the Albany Medical Center where, without charge, parents may have newborn babies evaluated. Money was also sent to other chapters as an emergency measure where funds had been exhausted in their programs to aid Polio and Birth Defects patients."

"After the drive, 25 per cent of all funds collected goes for research at the more than 100 centers across the nation and to the Salk Institute for Biological Studies where renowned scientists and doctors work together to learn the basic processes of life not only pertaining to birth defects but to all diseases. Fifty per cent of the balance of funds collected remains locally for patient care in Ulster County."

Linseed: Amazingly Versatile

This is an age of miracle products. But despite the wonders wrought in the chemistry labs, there are still a few old-fashioned items around that science really can't improve on. And even when science can, there is a known dependability built into the familiar products.

Linseed oil is one such item. Keep a can of it around and learn what it is good for. You will find it amazingly versatile. If you use it for nothing more than thinning paint, you are not realizing the full potential.

You will find linseed available either raw or boiled. (Polymerized is used whenever boiled oil is called for.)

Raw linseed oil takes a long time to dry—up to three or four days. The boiled oil dries quickly and often is used in conjunction with other thinners, such as turpentine.

Before using linseed for thinning paints (oil paints, never latex), check the instructions on the can to see which type is called for. Thinned with enough linseed oil, ordinary house paint becomes a good primer coat.

Raw oil is generally used to work into old putty that has become dried out.

For any other jobs mentioned here, use boiled or an equivalent kind of linseed oil.

Bristle brushes can be made more pliable before painting by soaking for 24 hours in linseed oil. Once you have used and then clean a brush, it is a good idea to treat it again with oil.

Few wood preservatives are older or better than linseed oil. Wipe it on garden tool handles to keep them from drying out.

Treat hammer handles with oil. Use an extra amount at the head end. If you can keep the wood from drying out, the head is less likely to become loose.

Brush linseed oil on unpainted fences, rails and posts every year.

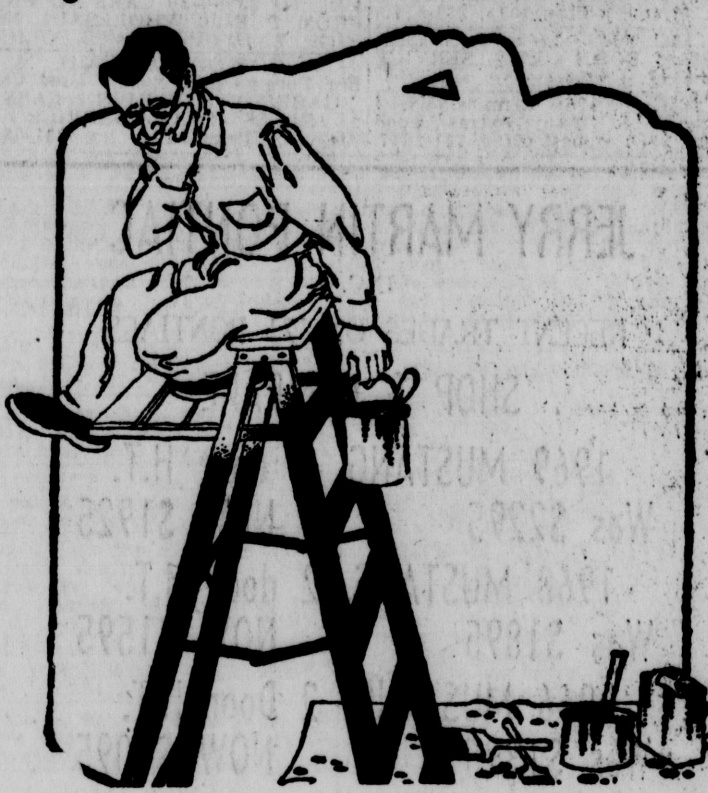

Painting a ladder is a mistake since the paint will hide defects underneath. Instead give the ladder a generous coat of linseed oil which will preserve the wood while remaining transparent.

To two parts of linseed oil, add one part turpentine and you have an excellent preservative and polish. Use it on outdoor furniture and rub it until it is dry. The same mixture is used for a fine oil finish on furniture.

But this is no easy job. From five to 20 applications are necessary, with plenty of drying time between applications.

Apply this same mixture to painted window sills to preserve them. Wooden screen doors and windows will withstand the weather better if treated with it.

Dip nails and screws in linseed oil to keep them from rusting. Use linseed oil in place of wax on drawers to keep them from sticking.

Garden Can Grow From Ashes

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Do coal or wood ashes from a stove or fireplace have any value in the garden? Coal ashes have very little or no plant food value, although in sufficient amounts they do improve the mechanical condition of a soil which packs hard. They can be used with a compost material with no harm. Scatter them over the garden and plow in. Wood ashes, unleached, contain all the mineral elements that were in the original wood. The most abundant elements are lime and potash. At one time, wood ashes were the chief source of potash, which is the plant food that gives plants stiff stems and imparts increased vigor and disease resistance to plants. Wood ashes can be used on the compost pile with leaves to hasten decomposition. Both hardwood and softwood ashes are fine to use in the flower bed or vegetable garden. If you have a stubborn peony or iris where needed, and some composted material will do more for the home garden than several bushels of ashes. But, if you've got them, by all means use them. Keep in mind that if you add ashes year after year, the soil should be tested to make sure it's not overly sweet. Do NOT use ashes for acid-loving plants.

A COLORFUL SHRUB: If you're looking for a good flowering shrub, grow the handsome Cardinal plant (Weigela variegata). It blooms from May to June, producing cardinal-red flowers, each somewhat trumpet-shaped. It grows best in full sun, but will take partial shade, reaching a height of 6 feet. If you want a shrub with blue flowers, try the Althea Blue Bird. Another good shrub is the Pyracantha or Firethorn. It produces long trusses of pure white flowers in May and an abundance of brilliant orange scarlet berries lasting into the winter. Grow in bright sun in almost any kind of soil. Makes a fine shrub for foundation plantings.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Last year our cucumbers were a mess. All we got was misshapen fruits. Our neighbor used a weederkiller in his lawn and I wonder if it had anything to do with it. Lawn was 300 feet away."

Answer: Yes, it could, by drifting. Weederkillers cause fruits to chlorotic, misshapen and stunted. Nubbins and crooks are also the result of improper pollination. Bad weather or lack of bees and insects at pollinating time could cause lack of pollination.

A reader writes: "We never have good luck with carrots. They seem to get a bug of some sort which ruins the crop. Any cure?"

Try growing them a bit later and make successive sowings. If you want a good variety to try, get Danvers, Imperator Long or Scarlet Nantes.

Crime Supermarket Smashed, 15 Arrested

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fifteen persons were arrested in Brooklyn and Queens Thursday on a variety of charges stemming from their alleged involvement in an underworld "supermarket" dealing in loan sharking, hijacking, stolen credit cards and forged drivers' licenses.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I called a girl

for a date and she accepted. I made dinner reservations at a high-class club that features soft lights, music and dancing. I told this girl where we were going and I also told her I was wearing a black pin-stripe suit with light blue shirt and matching tie and handkerchief so she should dress accordingly.

She lives way out in the opposite direction from where we were going so I sent a taxi to her house to pick her up. When she showed up at my place she was wearing pants, sneakers and a hippie jacket with "peace and love" all over it. I know this girl can dress nicely because I've seen her in nice clothes.

I told her I was sorry but I couldn't take her to the place I had reservations at. No therapist works "miracles" they wouldn't let us in "acres" in a short time. We the place with her dressed like started taking our child to that. I paid her taxi fare home, speech therapists when he was with the time flying I quick three years old. Seven years later I asked a girl in my apartment later he still needs coaching. I ment if she wanted to go out Handicapped children suffer for dinner. She jumped at the more from unkind treatment of a speech defect. I m their peers (and often and we had a wonderful eve- from adults) than they do from a speech defect.

My question: Was I wrong to have sent the first girl home? coaching at home, our son is I don't think so, but some other still taunted by children. And people think I was.

DEAR ME: Since "WHERE" mother laugh and encourage you went was obviously much her own child to call my son more important to you than names! WISCONSIN MOTHER DEAR MOTHER: The mother you referred to in your letter needs more help than a hand-capped child.

DEAR ABBY: About 15 months ago my husband passed away and I sold one of his suits (almost new) to one of the neighbors for $10.

Just the other day, this neighbor called me and asked me to take the suit back and give her the $10 back. So I did. She is supposed to be one of my best friends. This upset my whole family. What is your opinion about this?

DEAR DISCOURAGED: I think your friend must have been desperately in need of $10.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the Indiana Mother whose child had a speech defect and was teased by the other children. You couldn't take her to the place I recommended a speech therapist. No therapist works "miracles" they wouldn't let us in "acres" in a short time. We the place with her dressed like started taking our child to that. I paid her taxi fare home, speech therapists when he was with the time flying I quick three years old. She jumped at the more from unkind treatment of a speech defect. I m their peers (and often and we had a wonderful eve- from adults) than they do from a speech defect.

Despite therapy and daily have sent the first girl home? coaching at home, our son is I don't think so, but some other still taunted by children. And people think I was.

ME: I've actually seen another DEAR ME: Since "WHERE" mother laugh and encourage you went was obviously much her own child to call my son

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Now you have a good chance to put into effect policy decisions which you recently decided are the course of action under which you wish to live and operate in the future. Get down to fundamentals and do the actual work required. Join others in harmonious accord. Be practical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can plan the future in fine detail now and make it in infinitely more successful there. Quickly put now course in action. Give aid to one who comes to you for help and you also benefit indirectly.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 21) Look to good friends for new ideas and areas where you can meet with greater success. Showing friendship in a novel way brings good results. Stop being so irritable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrating on handling tasks with greater efficiency and speed is wise today. A bigwig helps you to streamline your life so that you feel less frustrated in the future. Show gratitude.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A discussion with associates over how to make your mutual projects pay off more handsomely is good today. Show a true sense of cooperation. Handle your affairs with exactness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Start on those duties that improve relationships with others and you have a new slant on bigger earnings. Clear the slate for better things. This helps to make you feel better.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to make the effort to be with good friends to enjoy the amusements you like. Put aside tensions that are unbearable. Tonight they will seem as easy as falling off a log.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to get work done at home. You have been procrastinating too long. Put things in order. Anything of a fundamental nature can be handled well now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are now able to finish many of those duties impossible during the busy work week. Don't forget to shop, visit those who are ill. Have fun with congenials in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy and work on those financial affairs that are most pressing at this time. Listen to the advice a business expert who helps start wheels rolling in right direction. Avoid the social today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can gab about as you desire today, but don't neglect to state your aims to influential persons who can help you to attain them. Much benefit comes from the social. Avoid arguments.

By PHIL PASTORET

Put five dollars away every week, and the wife will find it every time.

Yes, Gwendolyn, you might say that an "overseer" is a foreman for fortune tellers.

Be sure the salesman has a strong heart before you offer to pay hard cash for a new car.

WHY WE SAY

ANECOTE

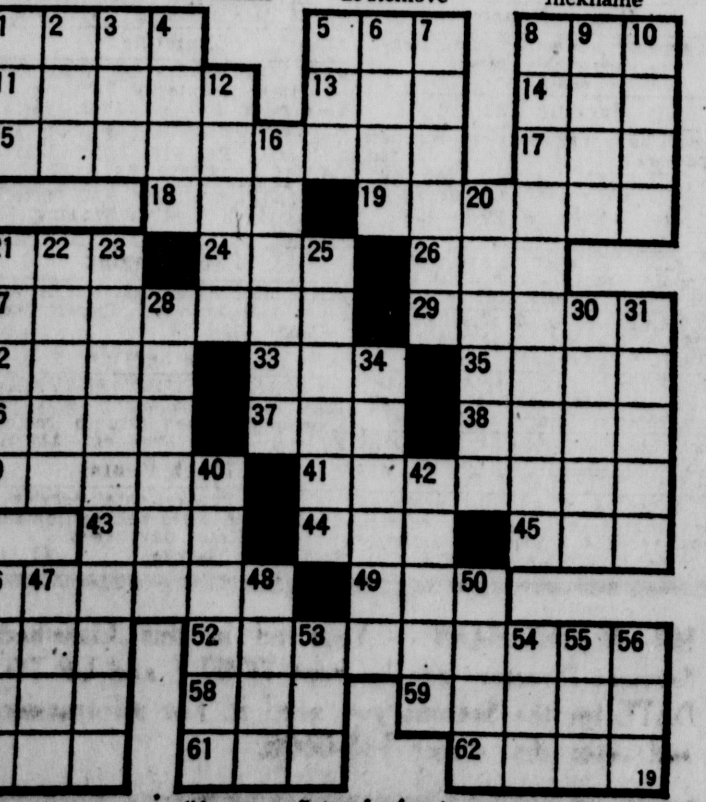

NOT GIVEN: An anecdote is a little personal story. The word comes from the Greek words "an" not, "ek" out, and "dota" given. An anecdote at first was a confidential story not given out to the general public.

TV Shedding Some Restraints

French wine that sells for $15 a bottle.

"I guess they thought they were free plugs," said Dinah. "But when I had quite a discussion with the author of 'The Sensuous Woman,' they never touched a word. Bureau of standards, where were you when I needed you?"

It was an interesting question. Sometimes the viewer wonders if network censors bother to check the exchange on daytime game shows which often are deliberately risqué, many times started or egged on by the host.

Actor Forrest Tucker, a guest contestant with his wife on "It's Television, however, has gradually been shedding restraints. "Hell" and "damn," once automatically erased from tapes, are now more frequent than even the commercial breaks on the late evening talk shows. Frank discussions of sex abound on the daytime shows.

Some of the recent made-for-TV movie features and even the series now are explicit in dealing with venereal disease, abortion, illicit relations, perversion and drug abuse.

The educational network recently left a brief nude scene in the movie "Marat-Sade."

North Vietnam Incursion Discussed

BUT NOT PREMEDITATED — Dr. Davis G. Crane (L) of Indianapolis, testified Thursday that Lt. William L. Calley (R) intended for the people to die when he shot them and ordered them shot. However, Dr. Crane said these deaths were not premeditated, in his opinion. Crane is first of three defense psychiatrists to present testimony before the jury, impaneled for the court-martial of Lt. Calley, who is charged with the alleged murder of 102 civilians in Vietnam. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command today reported seven more helicopters lost in the Laotian campaign and three Americans killed, six wounded and 10 missing. Political sources said South Vietnamese leaders were discussing a possible incursion into North Vietnam.

Military spokesmen also said 21 GIs were wounded in Viet Cong and North Vietnamese shelling attacks and the ambush of an infantry unit 37 miles east-northeast of Saigon. Three Americans were missing in a $2 million Marine Corps CH53 Jolly Green Giant helicopter that exploded today over jungles southeast of Hue. The chopper, biggest in use in Indochina, was returning from a support mission for South Vietnamese troops in Laos.

The Laotian drive so far has cost at least 34 Americans killed, 85 wounded and 13 reported missing.

South Vietnamese losses were at least 144 killed and 541 wounded with Viet Cong and North Vietnamese losses at 680 dead since the drive began 12 days ago.

South Vietnamese military spokesmen in Saigon said they had no new reports of major fighting today in the 16,000-man drive into Laos. They said the task force was about 15 or 16 miles inside Laos, although military sources reported some movements near Sepone, the Communist supply depot on the Ho Chi Minh Trail system 27 miles west of the border.

Political circles in Saigon were preoccupied with reports a medical evacuation mission and an OH6 helicopter shot down inside Laos. So far in the Laotian campaign 17 U.S. helicopters have been downed, although unofficially more than twice that number were reported crashed.

American military sources reported another UH1 Huey helicopter was destroyed Thursday night in a shelling attack against a U.S. position south west of Khe Sanh in South Vietnam and two more OH6 observation choppers were damaged by Communist ground fire on the Vietnamese side of the border a few hours earlier.

Nixon on Wilson — A Parallel

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he seeks to bring Americans their first full generation of peace in this century.

"I have set our sights on a span of time that men in positions of power today can cope with, just one generation, but one long step on the path away from perennial war," the President said Thursday.

His platform was a dedication ceremony at the Smithsonian Institution of an international center for scholars. It is named after Woodrow Wilson, who led Americans into World War I with the promise it would be "the war that will end war."

Since it did not, and since the United States refused to join the League of Nations, Nixon said, the 28th president "died a broken man."

"But now, with a half-century's perspective, we can see the success of Woodrow Wilson begin to emerge. He identified the United States of America with the principle of the self-determination of all nations, weak and strong."

"He lit a spark that merged this nation with the cause of generosity and idealism."

A day earlier, Nixon had declared he would not hesitate to use all U.S. airpower short of nuclear weapons to defend American troops in Indochina. He also declined to rule out support for Saigon should South Vietnam decide to invade North Vietnam.

His news conference comments stirred Sen. George S. McGovern, D.S.D., former peace talks negotiator W. Averell Harriman and other critics of Nixon's war policies.

"President Nixon's statement that he would put no limit on the use of American airpower in Indochina is a major escalation of the war," McGovern said at a news conference.

Harriman said if the fighting spread into North Vietnam he was convinced China would intervene.

The President shared the speaker's rostrum with the man he defeated for the presidency, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., a prime mover in establishment of the scholar's center.

Psychiatrist Back for Calley

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—Lt. William L. Calley's will was paralyzed at My Lai and he "could not possibly have premeditated" the murder of Vietnamese civilians there, a defense psychiatrist contends.

The psychiatrist was ordered back to the Calley court-martial witness stand today to expand on his opinions on cross-examination.

Dr. Albert A. LaVerne, the witness, a New York psychiatrist in private practice who said he is senior psychiatrist at Bellevue Medical Center currently on leave, was asked Thursday whether in his opinion

Calley had the mental ability "to plan, think out, or contrive taking the lives of the inhabitants."

He said Calley could not have done so because of "combat stress, psychological stress, and a predisposing propensity."

"Under certain kinds of stress, Lt. Calley will not be able to control his conscious behavior," LaVerne testified. "He will perform certain acts without realizing or understanding the meaning."

"He can't (under stress) understand a complex decision, was unable to choose a proper one and then act accordingly. At My Lai for three or four hours he was acting in automatic fashion, as a robot manner."

LaVerne, a slim, balding man with a pencil mustache, said he first examined Calley six months ago and found him "a normal American soldier."

Later, when the trial date was set, Calley became more anxious, restless, and irritable. Still later, LaVerne said, "He was scared to death about the court-martial. This is called 'the court martial induced stress.' This has enabled me to decide what he is made of. So I can tell how he was on March 16, 1968."

That is the date Calley, 27, led his infantry platoon on a sweep of the Vietnamese hamlet as part of a company commanded by Capt. Ernest L. Medina. Calley is charged with premeditated murder of 102 unarmed, unresisting women, children, and old men.
